

THE SCOUT: URBAN OUTDOORSENTERTAINING
Beehive
of activity

To add a little buzz to your backyard, consider the Beehive oven. Home gourmets can bring wood-fired flavor to meat, fish, veggies — pretty much anything. “Medium-size, thin-crust pizzas do really well,” says Fiona Hughes, president of Al Fresco Imports, the Bay Area-based company selling the Beehive. Her favorite: veggies caramelized in oven temperatures that reach 700 degrees. The $1,100 price includes the terra-cotta dome, actually two domes with a layer of rock insulation sandwiched in between; an oven door; a cooking rack; and an iron stand, powder-coated matte black and equipped with wheels.
